FIRST ANNUAL "DC'S WINE COUNTRY FOOD AND WINE FESTIVAL" AT HISTORIC WHITEHALL MANOR

The Virginia Food and Wine Foundation announces the first annual "DC's Wine Country Food and Wine Festival" at historic Whitehall Manor in Bluemont, VA on the evenings of July 10th through July 12th 2009.

Historic Whitehall Manor is the setting for this summer weekend-long event and provides an elegant and picturesque location to showcase some of Virginia's finest wines. Whitehall Farm is located in Virginia on the foothills of the majestic Blue Ridge Mountains in the small town of Bluemont, originally known as Snickersville, located 20 minutes from Middleburg, Leesburg and Winchester and less than an hour from Washington DC and suburban Maryland.

The first annual "DC's Wine Country Food and Wine Festival" will showcase 20 different Virginia wineries and will feature locally grown varietals hand selected by the wine makers. In addition to great wines, food options created by native Virginian chefs will include a buffet dinner in the Manor house as well as several picnic box cuisine options. The cuisine will feature traditional and regional summer favorites such as Virginia chopped beef barbeque, tomato and cucumber salad, marinated grilled chicken, Napa cabbage slaw, chilled sliced steak and key lime pie. David Weinschel, one of the founders of the foundation, states that "People are coming from the entire mid-Atlantic to experience the flavors, tastes and ambiance of this emerging Food & Wine region. The Virginia Food & Wine Foundation is very proud to be able to showcase the outstanding culinary and winemaking talents that deserve incredible notoriety."

A variety of unique demonstrations will be presented throughout the weekend to guests perusing the festival grounds. Mini wine seminars from well known, local Sommelier and wine expert, Mary Watson will occur every 30 minutes and will enhance the tasting experience for wine enthusiasts of all levels. The fine art of chocolate making will showcase an educational way to enjoy and learn about the process of creating this timeless delicacy. Local artisan glass blowers will be on site producing incredible glassware and other works of art including custom designed wine glasses and decanters. Live music will embellish the evening for those who wish to just sit back and relax with a glass of wine and discover the ambiance found at this grand property under the summer stars.

Attendance is limited each evening so that guests can enjoy a unique wine tasting experience and tickets are only available for purchase in advance online. To find out all of the pertinent details and to purchase your admission tickets and preferred dining options, please visit our website at <http://www.vafoodandwine.org>. Roundtrip transportation is available from three different locations close to DC, which are posted on the website along with pricing and pick up/drop off information. Public parking is also available on the festival grounds. Continued on page 8

Patriot Disposal Information Update

Patriot Disposal wishes to thank all the homeowners in the Broadlands Association for your assistance with the trash contractor transition in April. Most of all, we appreciate the courteousness of the requests and comments that we have received from homeowners, even when problems or concerns were being reported!

In response to the large number of requests we received for extra recycling bins, we have supplied the HOA office with a limited number of bins. Please contact the HOA office and arrange to pick one up. An additional option is to purchase a plastic bin of your choosing, mark it "recycling" and use it, along with our bin, for the collection of recyclable materials.

Patriot Disposal will collect the following items for recycling:

- Newspapers
- Mixed paper (catalogs, junk mail, window envelopes, phone books, cardboard and paperboard.)
- Glass food and beverage containers
- Aluminum/metal food and beverage containers
- Plastic (#1 through #7) food and beverage containers
- Scrap metal (foil, pie tins, pots and pans, small car parts, grills, bicycles, swings, chairs, etc.)
- Small electronics (computers, monitors, TVs, small printers, VCRs, DVD/CD players, phones)
- Used motor oil (place at the curb in a sealed, plastic container, clearly labeled)
- Car batteries

A few homeowners continue to put yard waste out for collection on Mondays in plastic bags. Loudoun County Waste Management requires that yard waste must be in paper bags or in a trash container that is marked "yard waste." Yard waste in plastic bags will not be picked up.

Broadlands residents are also encouraged, but not required, to include newspapers and mixed paper with the yard waste that is put out for collection. These items may be combined in the paper bags or containers of yard waste, or by setting out a separate recycling bin on Mondays that contains only newspapers and mixed paper. Pizza boxes, paperboard and cardboard are also acceptable.

Also, please note the following additional policies concerning yard waste pick up:

- Yard waste will be collected only on Mondays.
- Yard waste collection is for the purposes of picking up grass and yard debris generated as a result of usual, recurring yard and shrub maintenance.
- Trees that have fallen or have been taken down can be put out for collection, but will be considered a special pickup. Advance notice is required, and there may be an additional charge, depending on the amount of brush to be picked up.
- Brush must be cut into four-foot lengths, with limbs no larger than six inches in diameter.
- Brush must be tied in bundles no larger than two feet in diameter.
- Yard debris must be placed in separate containers, marked "yard waste" or in paper bags. Yard waste that is put out at the curb in plastic bags will not be picked up.
- Yard waste must be placed at the curbside and/or designated area by 7 a.m. for collection.
- The weight limit for yard waste is 35 pounds per bag or container.
- Please do not put out rocks or stones for collection. They can not and will not be collected.

As always, if you have any questions, please do not hesitate to call our office at 1 (703) 257-7100. Thank you!

You can pick up an application at the HOA office at the Nature Center or online at <http://www.broadlandshoa.org>. Click on 'HOA Forms' in the directory and then on 'Auto Pay Application.' Good Luck!

Continued from page 6. The Virginia Food and Wine Foundation was established to elevate Virginia as a respected and recognized food and wine region by offering professional advancement through internships and scholarships to those pursuing a career in the culinary arts or winemaking in Virginia. Weinschel predicts that "as the state of Virginia continues to gain an increasingly finer reputation for food and wine, both nationally and internationally, the results will benefit everyone statewide and will further solidify Virginia as a true destination for discerning cuisine and winemaking. Over time we plan on engaging all of the food and wine regions in the state and work with them on quality programming so that the mission of this organization can be shared." Proceeds from the festival will go directly to the developmental efforts of Virginia's culinary and wine professionals as well as the education and recruitment of students and new talent in hospitality and culinary education.

Notes from Your Neighbors..... Ashburn Volunteer Fire Rescue Department

Summer's Here!! Summer time means outdoor fun, barbecues, and cooling off in the water-at the pool or the beach. Help protect your children from drowning by doing the following:

- Never leave your children alone in or near the pool, even for a moment.
- An adult who knows CPR should actively supervise children at all times.
- Practice touch supervision with children younger than 5 years. This means that the adult is within an arm's length of the child at all times.
- Teach your child to swim, but remember, it does not necessarily make them "Drown proof".
- Supervise bath time. Never leave a child alone in the bathtub or in the care of another child.
- Stay in designated areas. At public beaches, swim only in areas set aside for swimming.
- Learn CPR, even if you're diligent about child safety, accidents are still possible. Prepare for an emergency by learning cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR). Quick action can save a life.

Take a community CPR class @ AVFRD – check out our website for community CPR dates & sign up at www.ashburnfirerescue.org.

Pancake Breakfast at the Ashburn Firehouse, 20688 Ashburn Rd. First Sunday of every month, next date August 2, 8:00 a.m. until noon, Adults $6, Ages 3-8 $4, & seniors $5, under 3 is free. Bring your camera; Terry the Traumasaurus will be making an appearance. Please note, there is no Pancake Breakfast in JULY – the kitchen crew will be on vacation! Join us for "Kid's Corner", every month will feature a new surprise, a visit by a special guest, a craft project, etc. As always, there is an opportunity for child and adult to tour the fire engines and ambulances that protect you every day. If you have a youth group that requires community service hours, please contact dldesito@yahoo.com.

NEIGHBORHOOD WATCH CORNER:

FROM THE

LOUDOUN COUNTY SHERIFF'S OFFICE

With summer weather and warm temperatures outside, you may have noticed some charming, friendly persons knocking on doors in your neighborhood trying to sell home security systems. While some door-to-door salespersons are honest, the chance does exist that you may be taken advantage of if you are not cautious and informed. Sure these door-to-door salespersons appear clean-cut and honest, but are they friend or fraud?

The Loudoun County Sheriff's Office asks residents to be on the lookout for door-to-door solicitors who:

- Use tricks to get into your home – they may imply they are from your alarm company and need to test or upgrade your alarm system; however, reputable alarm companies generally do not send technicians to your home unannounced.
- Say they want to upgrade your old, outdated security system.
- Say that you need to take advantage of the offer TODAY, when a reputable alarm company will give you the time you need to carefully consider your purchase.
- Say that it is not necessary to contact your current alarm company prior to having another alarm company add to, change, or do any kind of work on your security system.

The agency is also reminding residents to check registrations and permits. You can protect yourself by checking for proper licenses, registrations, and permits. Virginia strictly regulates the private security industry. Every company selling alarm products or services is required to be licensed by the Virginia Department of Criminal Justice Services (VADCJS).

Furthermore, the license number issued is required to be prominently displayed on all materials and advertisements where the company name is shown. Additionally, those persons working for a licensed private security company are required to meet minimal training standards and be registered by VADCJS. They must also have a pictured registration card on their person whenever working. Finally, Loudoun County requires a solicitation license for those engaged in door-to-door sales, and a pictured registration card issued by the Sheriff's Office must be presented when requested. Be sure to protect yourself from fraud by asking to see proper documentation from solicitors at your door and especially from all who enter your home. 🦋

Help Your New Patriot Trash Can Stay at Home!

When you receive your new trash can from Patriot Disposal, you will notice a number imprinted on the side of the receptacle. This is a unique serial number. Please make note of it. In case your trash can is swept away by high winds, you will be able to identify it as yours. Additionally, residents may contact the association office with their name, address, telephone number and the serial number of their receptacle. The association office will keep a log, so if a trash can is found the owner can be identified and contacted. This is a voluntary program. Please send an email to mburns@broadlandshoa.com or call (703) 729-9704 to be included in this program.

Please encourage your neighbors who may not be newsletter readers to do the same.

Nothin' But 'Net

From the Federal Trade Commission.

Submitted by: Dawne Holz, HOA Technology Committee member and Consumer Education Specialist at the FTC.

While the following article is not specifically Internet or computer related, the FTC has received a large number of consumer complaints about this scam.

How to Steer Clear of Auto Warranty Scams

The Federal Trade Commission (FTC), urges you to be skeptical of mail and phone calls warning that the warranty on your car is about to expire. The companies behind the mail and calls may give the impression they represent your car dealer or manufacturer. With phrases like "Motor Vehicle Notification," "Final Warranty Notice," or "Notice of Interruption," they are trying to make the offer seem urgent – and to get you to call a toll-free number for more information.

More than likely, these pitches are from unrelated businesses that want to sell you extended warranties – more accurately known as service contracts – that often sell for hundreds or thousands of dollars. If you respond to a call from a business pitching so-called extended warranties, you're likely to hear high-pressure sales tactics, as well as demands for personal financial information and a down payment, before you get any details about the service contract. And, if you buy a service contract, you may find that the company behind it won't be in business long enough to fulfill its commitments.

Protect Yourself

So how can you steer clear of scam auto warranty offers? The FTC says:

- If you get mail or phone calls about renewing your vehicle warranty, don't take the information at face value. Your vehicle's warranty may be far from expiring – or it may have expired already. If you have a question about your warranty, check your owner's manual, call the dealer who sold you the car, or contact the vehicle manufacturer.
- Be alert to fast talkers. Telemarketers pitching auto warranties often use high-pressure tactics to hide their true motive. Take your time. Most legitimate businesses will give you time and written information about an offer before asking you to commit to a purchase.
- Never give out personal financial or other sensitive information like your bank account, credit card, or Social Security numbers – even your driver's license number or Vehicle Identification Number (VIN) – unless you know who you're dealing with. Scam artists often ask for this information during an unsolicited sales pitch, and then use it to commit other frauds against you.
- Be skeptical of any unsolicited sales calls if the call is a recorded message or if your phone number is on the National Do Not Call Registry. You shouldn't get recorded sales pitches unless you have recently done business with the company or you have specifically agreed to accept such calls. And if your number is on the National Do Not Call Registry, a salesperson may call you only if you have agreed to accept calls from the company the salesperson works for, if you have bought something from the company within the last 18 months, or if you have asked the company for information within the last three months. To report violations of the National Do Not Call Registry or to register a phone number, visit DoNotCall.gov or call 1-888-382-1222.

Service Contracts

A service contract is a promise to perform (or pay for) certain repairs or services. Although a service contract is sometimes called an extended warranty, it is not a warranty as defined by federal law. A service contract may be arranged any time and always costs extra; a warranty comes with a new car and is included in the original price. Used cars also may come with some type of coverage. The separate and additional cost distinguishes a service contract from a warranty.

Auto service contracts may be sold by vehicle manufacturers, auto dealerships, or independent providers. If you want to buy a service contract, shop around so you understand just what you're buying. Coverage varies widely. Other tips:

- Research the company responsible for paying your claims (usually called the contract administrator or the service contract provider). Service contract sellers (also called brokers) do not decide what repairs are covered under the service contracts they sell, and they may assert that they have no further responsibility to you once you buy the service contract.
- Check on licensing and registration within your state. While many states do not regulate contract administrators, some states (including California, Florida, and New York) have strict regulations.
- Before you do business, check out the seller and the contract administrator with your state Attorney General (www.naag.org), local consumer protection agency (www.consumeraction.gov), and the Better Business Bureau (www.bbb.org) to make sure no unresolved complaints are on file. The phone numbers for these organizations are in your phone book or available through directory assistance or Internet directories.

To learn more about service contracts and questions to ask a contract administrator, see "Auto Service Contracts" at www.ftc.gov.

File a Complaint

If you think you've been victimized by an auto warranty scam, file a complaint with the Federal Trade Commission. Although the FTC does not intervene in individual disputes, the information you provide may indicate a pattern of possible law violations requiring action by the Commission. The FTC works for the consumer to prevent fraudulent, deceptive, and unfair business practices in the marketplace and to provide information to help consumers spot, stop, and avoid them. To file a complaint or to get free information on consumer issues, visit ftc.gov or call toll-free, 1-877-FTC-HELP (1-877-382-4357); TTY: 1-866-653-4261. The FTC enters consumer complaints into the Consumer Sentinel Network, a secure online database and investigative tool used by hundreds of civil and criminal law enforcement agencies in the U.S. and abroad.

"Vaccination Situation"

Although I devote this article specifically to pet health, I thought I would touch on the recent outbreak of the new flu virus and what lessons it can teach us. By now, nearly everyone has heard of the H1N1 influenza, or "swine flu". It was originally called that because laboratory testing showed that many of the genes in this new virus were very similar to the influenza virus that normally occurs in pigs in North America. Further studies have shown this new virus is in fact very different from what normally circulates in North American pigs.

This leads me to mention the importance of vaccinating in preventing outbreaks, including outbreaks of zoonotic diseases, or those that are transmittable from animals to people, as well as animal-specific diseases. Polio and small pox are virtually things of the past, at least in the United States, primarily due to the effective vaccinating of the human population. In a similar manner, rabies, distemper, and parvo viruses have been successfully controlled in pets because of the vaccines developed against them.

We've also seen the results in areas where vaccinating is insufficient. I spent time overseas, in Morocco, and saw firsthand what could happen. There were rabid dogs present, especially stray ones in the countryside, and the country was also dealing with a massive outbreak of African Equine Sickness. This virus has a 90% mortality to those horses exposed, with ticks and mosquitoes acting as vectors, and dogs and camels acting as intermediate and non-symptomatic hosts. I was working with the Moroccan government to help educate the public at the time, as well as organize vaccination clinics to help immunize as many horses as we could.

A bit closer to home, I've seen many dogs and cats come to us from places where there was not enough care and little vaccinating occurring. They had anything from severe upper respiratory illnesses, to ocular ulcers, to profuse bloody diarrhea, sometimes leading to death. We're lucky here in Ashburn where so many people take such good care of their pets that the incidence of these diseases is limited.

Hopefully researchers will develop a vaccine against the H1N1 soon, but at least we are educated and aware of what to look for, and may we use this situation to remind ourselves of how to be safe and healthy, both for ourselves and our beloved pets.

Till next time,

Dr. Steve, www.ashburnanimals.com, 703-729-0700

What Are Those Unique Long Legged, Short Tailed Birds That Hang Out Near the Walkway By Harris Teeter ?

They are part of the Ardeidae bird family and are commonly known as Great Blue Herons. These birds stand about three and a half feet, have a wingspan of almost 6 feet and have long pointed bills. Most of a heron's time is spent in a wetland habitat like our walkway area. One quarter of all birds rely on these wetland ecosystems.

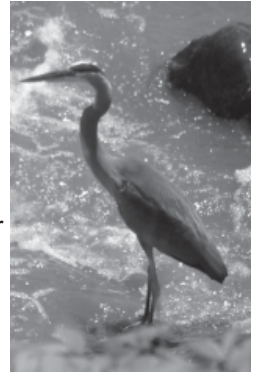

Hérons enjoy eating fish, salamanders, lizards, frogs, snakes, small mammals and aquatic insects. When they hunt for prey they either stir the water with their foot, startle their prey or walk quickly near their prey. They also use what is called a walk-stop-walk-stop hunting method.

Hérons are unique for a few other reasons. When herons fly they hold their necks in an "S" shape with their heads held back between their shoulders. They have very strong muscles in their necks which allow them to shoot their heads forward when catching their prey.

Hérons have some other unique physical adaptations. They have an unusual comb on their middle toe. This appendage is used to keep their feathers neat and clean. Herons are also one of the few birds that have powder down feathers. These feathers disintegrate easily and the powder formed is used to help keep their feathers clean.

On the domestic front, herons will roost together in groups of trees that are sometimes quite a distance away from their feeding areas. Sometimes these nest colonies are mixed in with other birds' nests such as storks and ibises. In general, herons lay 2-6 eggs and incubate the eggs for 26 days. Both parents build the nest and feed the young.

The biggest threat to these awesome birds in the early 20th century was plumage demand. Feathers were used as ornamental decorations. The plumage trade almost devastated the Ardeidae bird family. Today's threats are excessive chemicals from agriculture, floods, human stream channelization and energy and climate change. Bird populations have decreased in this type of ecosystem because of these factors, but fortunately management and conservation measures have had a positive effect.

The Baby Formula: Pets + New Baby = a Happy Home by Shannon M. Pecora, M.A. Stream Valley Veterinary Hospital

Having your first child can be fun and scary for so many different reasons. One of those reasons, that could go either way, is introducing your new baby to pets who may have been in your household for many years already. Stereotypically, the cat may become resentful and aloof. The dog may become jealous and needy. You want your whole family to grow together peacefully and harmoniously, but maybe you can't be sure if your furry "child" will connect with your new baby.

The good news is that you don't have to go it alone in this situation. Taking the "wait-and-see" approach, without asking for help, may lead to too much uncertainty. You don't have to be Cesar Milan to know that our own anxiety can create anxiety in our pets. You want your baby to come home to a calm environment, so you should prepare your pets for the transition.

There are a few standard techniques, such as bringing home a blanket for your pets to sniff after the birth, but before the homecoming. Also, when Mom walks back into the house from the hospital for the first time, it's a good idea for someone else to carry in the new baby. This way, dogs and cats can greet Mom with unimpeded excitement without putting the baby in danger of licking tongues or scratching paws.

Broadlands Piranhas Swim Teams are Giving Back!

This summer the swim teams have adopted a community outreach mission they call "Kids Helping Kids". The committee wanted to give families the opportunity to talk with their children about other children and families in our community that are in need. The Piranhas' are conducting five charity drives, one at each of the home swim meets they host this season.

The first was a food drive to benefit Loudoun Interfaith Relief on June 13th at their time trials. They collected 282 lbs of food for Loudoun residents needing emergency food assistance. The other collections which will be held throughout June and July, include Good Shepherd Alliance, Tracey's Kids, a pediatric art therapy program of the Prevent Cancer Foundation, a School Supply drive for the Loudoun County Dept of Family Services, and a book drive for the Loudoun Literacy Council.

How to Talk to our Children about Sexting

Sexting, the practice of sending sexually explicit photos and messages between cell phones, has quickly become all the rage for many pre-teens and teens across the Nation. The phenomenon was first reported in 2005, and since then, parents, lawmakers and school systems have been grappling with how to deal with it. And Loudoun County is not immune to this phenomenon. In March of last year, Ting-Yi Oei, a 60-year-old assistant principal at Freedom High School in South Riding, Virginia was charged with child pornography in investigating sexting within his school. The charges were later dismissed by a Loudoun County Judge, but not after Ting-Yi Oei spent $150,000 defending himself and his three decade career as a well respected educator.

Sexting has been brought on by the advances in technology, and how we deal with it continues to be debated. Recent concerning research has found that 22% of teen girls and 20% of teen boys have sent nude or semi-nude photos of themselves. Moreover, 29% of teens believe that exchanging nude photos are "expected" to date or be popular.

As a nation, we are still trying to understand how to punish sexting as a crime and fix it as a problem, as several judges across the Nation are dismissing these sorts of cases. For example, while most parents would agree that it's wrong for a 13 year old to send an indecent photo of him or herself to a girlfriend or boyfriend, most of us would also feel uneasy charging and prosecuting that 13 year old for the act. As parents, we'd prefer to handle the matter within our own home and not the court room inasmuch as sexting is considered to be a felony crime.

Here are some basic parent guidelines in protecting your pre-teen or teen from the problem.

- Talk to your preteen or teen about sex. It's better for you to deal with any discomfort that may arise in this conversation as parents than to have your son or daughter out in this very fast paced world of ours ill-prepared to handle him or herself.
- Discuss the dangers of sexting with your son or daughter – that it's illegal and that the message, once sent, can be resent to others. Ask your teen if he or she would be comfortable having the entire school see their sent photo or message.
- Get your son or daughter's word that he or she will delete any received nude photo or inappropriate message. Your teen needs to know that having possession of such material on their cell phone is a crime, and sending it on, is redistributing child pornography – also a crime.
- You can also direct your son or daughter to ThatsNotCool.com, an informative Website that deals well with the topic of sexting.

Lastly, be willing to get professional help for your teenager if needed. Teens may simply sext to be part of things or this behavior may represent deeper, underlying issues (e.g., low self-esteem, self-worth or confidence). As parents, we are often too close to help our teenagers to deal with or resolve their problems. ~~~~~

Your veterinarian may be able to offer informational handouts, or even a few tips over the phone. You may also request a series of in-office behavioral consultations, particularly if you've ever observed fearful, questionable, or aggressive behavior when your pets are around your relatives' or friends' children. If your dog has had obedience training, try calling that trainer for advice or special instructional sessions. As you build a support network for your new role as a parent, you can create a team to help your pets cope and adjust.

Growing your family is certainly exciting, but it isn't always easy. One of my own dogs showed some "mothering instinct" when we brought our new baby home. Whenever our baby boy would cry, she wanted to be in charge of comforting him. She had the best of intentions as she wanted to nuzzle and snuggle with the baby, but my husband and I still needed to let her know that it's our job to care for him. With each passing day, she got a little better at letting us be the parents.

Ultimately, patience is the key to having our whole household adjust to one more loved and cherished family member. 🐾
